Celebrating the Ordinary Provincial Chapter: Standing on Holy Ground

Ordinary Provincial Chapters are held every four years, as dictated by the Constitutions of the Order of Saint Augustine. The 2010 Chapter for the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova was held on the campus of Villanova University. The accomplishments of the 2010 Chapter and pictorial of the special moments in the Chapter are caught through the lens of Fr. Daniel J. McLaughlin, O.S.A.

LETTER FROM THE PRIOR PROVINCIAL

Dear Friends,

In the last edition of The Augustinian magazine my brother Donald F. Reilly, O.S.A., wrote his last letter to you as Prior Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova and with this Winter Edition, I am privileged to write my first letter to you. Much has happened in our Province since last June.

Our Provincial Chapter, where all the members are called together every four years to discuss our way of life together, was held on the campus of Villanova University, and, as the Constitutions of the Order exhort us, “friars gathered must desire the good of the province with their whole heart and strive to attain it as far as possible.” (Const. 316.) The friars worked for the ten preceding months in preparing for the “disciplined conversation” that we experienced in June. We looked at our spirituality, our community life, our relationship with our brother Augustinians, the body of Christ, the world. We brought our hearts to the Chapter and shared them with each other. You will get a glimpse of the joy of being together in these pages.

From February 18th, when I was elected as Prior Provincial, to the Chapter, I requested that all the friars of the province submit to me the names of men who could assist me in the governance of the province by their prudent advice and energetic work. You will meet the Counselors, my Secretary, and Treasurer as selected by the vote of the Chapter in this issue. These friars each have unique gifts and experiences that are of great help in promoting our apostolic undertakings and providing for the good of the province.

The week before I was installed as Prior Provincial, the Very Rev. Bernard C. Scianna, O.S.A., was installed as Prior Provincial of the Midwestern Augustinians, the Province of Our Mother of Good Counsel. Fr. Reilly and I were able to attend Fr. Bernie’s celebration with our brothers from the Midwest. Fr. Bernie and I have since traveled to visit our brothers in Japan, to the Philippines for our Intermediate General Chapter and to Korea to be with our Korean brothers as they celebrated their 25th anniversary as a mission. This time spent together was significant because both the Villanova Province and Good Counsel Province have voted to explore working together in key areas of operation, and our time traveling together gave us an opportunity to bond in brotherhood as new Provincials on a new course.

One of my first acts as Prior Provincial was to assign a new friar to South Africa. What a graced moment for me to say “yes” to this request. My heart was filled as it was the day I was asked to send forth the Augustinian Volunteers for 2010-2011 for their missions to the provinces where Augustinians work. One evening, while having dinner with our volunteers in New England, I was asking how they were doing and what could be shared at orientation that would help the volunteers in their transitioning. Without any hesitation one of the volunteers said, “More should be said about the relationship of the volunteers and the Augustinian communities.” That volunteer got it. “One mind, one heart intent upon God.”

South Africa

What protects your heart? Is it stability in life, love and family?

Take away stability. Evaporate the table of food, well constructed roof and warm bed. Eliminate access to medical professionals, education and a reliable income. Add a lifetime of suppression and a generation of death and diseases pillaging your community, your neighbors and your home.

Welcome to South Africa. Welcome to the life of Lindiwe, a patient of mine at the Hillcrest AIDS Respite Centre and a dear friend.

Often Lindiwe slept the day away silently so I was surprised one morning while giving her a bed bath when she asked me if she could have the cloth to wash her own face. Typically patients who cannot make it through a standing shower are bathed in their beds – head to toe. As I handed Lindiwe her washcloth I was silently thankful for her newfound strength.

Her bath was finished and her hair was braided. She told me that even though her body was not doing well, her heart and her head were protected because of the love in her life. Love from her beautiful family and love from Jesus.

Mid sentence she paused.

She took one deep breath and she asked me to help her lay down saying she wasn't feeling well. As she neared the pillow her eyes rolled into the back of her head. Her body grasping for air, her breaths shallow. As 7 A.M. turned to 10 A.M. I sat there. I held her hand and I prayed.

Lindiwe, age 40, passed away. She left behind a family who adored her, including three beautiful young children.

I often leave the AIDS Centre at a crossroads of heartbreak and discouragement. It is in those moments that I pause and think about what protects my heart.

It's the unspoken love that I am surrounded with during beautiful days and most importantly during harder days. It's the deep faith and ever-present strength in the eyes of my patients even when their pain is intense and their bodies are giving up. It's the loving support of my three roommates whose hands support mine in friendship, love and prayer at the start and end of each day.

My heart is protected by experiencing first hand how freely love flows in South Africa. It's protected by witnessing the deep faith of my patients who, like Lindiwe, have encouraged my strong belief in something bigger than myself.

Peru

My new local friends in Chulucanas, Peru, tease me about how I always say "yes" to taking on random jobs or favors or activities.

For example, Peruvians really love Michael Jackson. When the students I teach at the parochial school found out I shared their love for the King of Pop (RIP), they asked me to choreograph a dance for the annual Mother's Day celebration. Of course, I said yes. They wanted to do Thriller. I didn't take into account that they didn't understand the song was about zombies. The kids rented a smoke machine, a strobe light and found a guy to paint their faces like dead people. We were the last number... the grand finale in an auditorium packed with moms. It was a huge success and the kids were so happy... I don't think the moms even cared that their Mother's Day gift was their child coming back from the dead.

So as not to make this entry obnoxiously long, I will conclude with a brief summary of other "yesses". Yes to learning and dancing a traditional Peruvian dance in front of a team of volunteer doctors from the U.S. Yes to quitting vegetarianism and eating pig intestine my second week in Peru (which turned into eating lots more meats...that I ended up really enjoying). Yes to going to baby showers and birthdays and saying yes to participating in their games (which may or may not have consisted of dressing up as Barney). Each of these experiences were unique and (as clichéd as it sounds) once in a lifetime opportunities.

I will miss the beautiful life I've lived in my year in Chulucanas, but from it I will take so much. Above all, an adventurous outlook that seeks to suck all the juice life has to give.

THE 2010 ORDINARY PROVINCIAL CHAPTER: STANDING ON HOLY GROUND

BY TEDDIE GALLAGHER

In the opening moments of the 2010 Ordinary Provincial Chapter, Fr. Anthony M. Genovese, O.S.A., Provincial-Elect, addressed the friars: “As we gather, we stand on holy ground. Mindful of our history we are aware of the courage and vision of the friars of the past who have created this Province.”

Fr. Mickey’s words about the friars of the past are truly significant when you realize a “chapter” is actually an event that is regulated by Constitutions that trace its roots back some 700 years!

The earliest known Constitutions came 34 years after the founding of the Order, when friars at the 1290 chapter, held at Ratisbon, Germany (now Regensburg) voted to adopt the Ratisbon Constitutions. It is thought that Constitutions were created at that time to regulate Augustinian houses, out of fear the Order would be suppressed by the Pope for lack of organization.

The Constitutions of the Order underwent various revisions over the centuries, most recently in 1968 after the Second Vatican Council, and again in 2008, after the publication of the Code of Canon Law.

The “Acts of the Chapter” is the official document that records the comments, proposals and the final adopted “Program of the Province.”

One famous chapter proposal was recorded in Heidelberg, Germany in April 1518, when Martin Luther, O.S.A., defended his thesis on the practice of indulgences. Now referred to as the Heidelberg Disputation, it is this thesis, defended in this chapter, which ultimately led to the Reformation.

Provincial Chapters are still places where proposals are put forward. Last June, on the campus of Villanova University, friars from all over the world returned for the celebration of the 2010 Ordinary Provincial Chapter. Solemnly professed friars who are ascribed to the province are charged to attend, provide disciplined discussion, form proposals for programs, and vote on those programs.

Days of the chapter are planned for prayer, sacred music, presentations, group discussions, open comments from friars, meals—and more prayer and sacred music. In the middle of the chapter, the re-elected or newly-elected Prior Provincial is installed. On subsequent days, friars vote for the new Secretary, Treasurer, Counselors and the new programs.

*“Mindful of our history
we are aware of the courage and vision of the friars of the past who have created this Province.”*

FR. ANTHONY M. GENOVESE, O.S.A.

Amid prayers for the success of the chapter and the call to be mindful of the courage and vision of friars past, the members of the chapter formulated almost a dozen proposals. All achieved a majority of the vote and all were adopted to be part of the “Program of the Province.”

One proposal that might be considered holy-ground shifting, centered on taking first steps to renew and develop a greater and more effective Augustinian presence in North America through partial Federation. The proposal seeks to explore increased collaboration in the areas of Missions (Foreign and Domestic); Communications; Development for Common Ministries; Justice and Peace; and New Initiatives in Ministries. The friars adopted this proposal to do more and do it better. Vocations and Formation, already Inter-Provincial Ministries, will continue to be handled in the same way.

The Province of Our Mother of Good Counsel in the Midwest and the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova in the East, have approved moving forward with this Federation plan. Statutes to define it have been prepared by the respective Prior Provincials for approval by the Prior General and his Council—as specified in Constitutions #271c. These statutes have been prepared and will be submitted for approval in February 2011.

The Acts of the 2010 chapter now join Acts of all other chapters in Augustinian history. The adopted “Program of the Province,” will drive the work of the Prior Provincial and his Council for the next four years. In 2012, an Intermediate Provincial Chapter will be held to benchmark the progress made on the programs and make adjustments to achieve the programs as needed.

Highlights of the 2010 Ordinary Provincial Chapter were captured through the lens of Fr. Dan McLaughlin, O.S.A., and are presented on the pages that follow as a tribute to the success of the chapter. More photos can be seen in photo galleries at www.augustinian.org. †

Fr. Michael was in the 4th grade when Sister Martin, CSFN, gave him a book on the priesthood. He remembers thinking “Why didn’t she give it to my twin brother?” At sixteen, he was attracted to the life of work and prayer of the Augustinian Brothers when he and his mother visited his cousin, a Brother working at Augustinian Academy on Staten Island. He entered the Order at the age of 18 and was professed as a Brother in 1968. In April, 1979 he had a heart attack and, while he was in the hospital, he was surprised to feel a strong call to become a priest. Eighteen years after he entered the Order, he was ordained a priest. This year he celebrated Mass for Sister Martin’s Golden Jubilee.

Looking forward: Fr. Michael firmly believes in God’s Providence -- that God orders all things in our lives. He prays daily to want what God wants.

Fr. Marty knew he was called by God for something, but didn’t think he was worthy. So he ran. He rarely showed up for high school, dropped out when he was 15, returned when he was 19 and graduated when he was 22. He wanted to go to college, but because his new grades were averaged with zeros from his early high school days, no college would consider him. He met Fr. Ray Geisser, O.S.A., at a college fair in New York City. Fr. Marty told Fr. Ray his story and surprisingly, Fr. Ray accepted him to Biscayne College on the spot! It was through Fr. Ray, other friars at Biscayne and research about the Order, that Fr. Marty found he was Augustinian in his bones – the restless journey, the rough stuff – had all been true for him.

Looking Forward: Fr. Marty believes he has not yet fulfilled what God has called him to do.

Fr. Ray grew up in Sharon Hill, PA., where he and his family were very involved in their church. He thought about becoming a priest when he was five, but did not seriously think about the priesthood again until the end of his high school years. “I am an Augustinian because I went to Bonner High School.” Fr. Ray remembers many friars at Bonner who influenced his choice, including Fr. Bill McGuire and Fr. Gordon Marcellus. They demonstrated the Augustinian values of service and community, a path Fr. Ray chose for his life.

Looking forward: Fr. Ray is restless to bring down walls, to create 21st Century ministry that is not business as usual. He sees people everywhere who long to be grounded in community, grounded by the Word of God and the Bread of Life—and he wants to find that ground.

He met many friars at Bonner, stayed in touch with them and enjoyed their company, but planned to use his B.S. in Business Administration for a career. In his senior year at Villanova, Fr. Joe started interviewing for jobs and found his plan to work in corporate America felt oddly wrong for him. It was then that he spoke to Fr. Joseph Mostardi, O.S.A., about his restlessness and Fr. Mostardi asked him if he might consider religious life. After graduation, Fr. Joe entered the Augustinian pre-novitiate program; 25 years later, Fr. Joe is directing the pre-novitiate program for the Province.

As a boy in El Salvador, Fr. Carlos was inspired to become a priest by the religious devotion of his grandmother and mother. However, from the age of 12 to 18 he went away from the church and did not return until Feb. 24, 1980 when he heard Archbishop Óscar Arnulfo Romero preach, just a month before Romero was assassinated. In January 1984, Carlos joined the Carmelites but ultimately left them and decided not to pursue a religious life. He went to school in New York where he met Augustinians and worked with friars in lay ministry in New York and Massachusetts. Fr. Carlos credits Art Johnson, O.S.A., for leading him back to the priesthood and speaks of Fr. Art as one of the greatest men of faith.

Looking Forward: Fr. Carlos would like to spend time as a Missionary, because the best teachers for him are those people of simplicity, who simply trust.

GOD'S

S FOOT SOLDIERS:

THE GOOD WORKS OF THE LAITY

BY TEDDIE GALLAGHER

There's no denying that the footage of the South African Missions in The Visionaries Public Television documentary, "God's Foot Soldiers," is extremely touching. The fact that 20 percent of the Zulu children who attend St. Leo's school are HIV positive is devastating. The moment when 10-year old Nelisiwe Zonde tells the story of her mother dying from AIDS and what it means for her to go to St. Leo's school is hard to get through without tears. But then you say, wait a minute. This poised ten-year old, who is living in an impoverished part of South Africa where Zulu is the predominant language, just told her story to us in near-perfect English! This is a moment of triumph. This is a real-life example of what forms the underlying subtext of "God's Foot Soldiers" — the collaboration of Augustinians with committed lay staff, Augustinian Volunteers and benefactors, and the hope that it brings to others.

THE MISSIONS OFFICE— COLLABORATION AT THE TOP

In "God's Foot Soldiers" Fr. Tony Burrascano, O.S.A., Director of the Missions Office and Brian Strassburger, Assistant Director of the Missions Office (pictured left), set the context of the enormous challenges the Zulu people face in dealing with a generation lost to AIDS; educating the children left to cope; and breaking through the remnants of Apartheid to relieve the dire poverty. Their words are powerful and insightful.

Their tenor is compassionate and yet challenging—determined to tell the story, to help and get help from others.

Fr. Tony and Brian are a team at the top of the Missions Office that drives the education and fundraising work of the Augustinian Missions. They are an impressive example of an effective lay and Augustinian collaboration for the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova.

For many years, up until January, 2009, the Missions Office was headed by a sole friar. In the fall of 2008, Brian, who was serving in South Africa as an Augustinian Volunteer, was having a very powerful experience and did not want to have a disconnect from it when his year ended. Coincidentally, the Augustinian Friars were looking to expand the Educational piece of the Missions and Brian was offered the job starting in January of 2009.

"Brian is very good with technology, a very good speaker, has had experience as an Augustinian Volunteer in the U.S. and South Africa, and is able to speak about that in educational programs and the missions. He's very dedicated to the missions, dedicated to the Augustinians. He does as much as I do. He's as much a part of it as I am. It's really just a co-sharing."

Fr. Tony got his first experience with Mission work in 1987 when he was asked to go to Peru to fill in for friars who needed to come back to the U.S. for health reasons. "You can't work in the Missions and not be changed," said Fr. Tony about his experience in Peru. And indeed, Fr. Tony stayed closely connected to the Missions over the years as Missions Procurator, as Treasurer of the Province and working on weekends during the past 18 summers doing Mission Appeals.

Fr. Tony has a special connection to South Africa because he spent over four years living on-and-off in the Augustinian Mission in South Africa and was Treasurer of the Province at the time the Augustinians were asked to take on a Mission in South Africa:

"Fourteen years ago, when we were asked to consider taking a Mission in South Africa, Fr. Jack Deegan, (then Prior Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova) and I went to South Africa, to meet with Wilfred Cardinal Napier, O.F.M., Archbishop of Durban, to see what type of work he might want us to take on. We were thinking what kind of manpower, parishes or schools would he want and wondering how much it would cost."

"What he [Archbishop Napier] said that he needed most, in a country which has been divided by Apartheid for so long, and so brutally, is a religious order to come here whose charism is living community. He needed them to live their community life, to show to a divided nation that different types of people can live together in harmony and peace. That 'blew our minds,' because that's not what we were thinking. We were being very American and thinking about things you can touch—the man, the work and the money. Archbishop Napier challenged us to live the Spirit."

“Being an Augustinian Volunteer is much more about the relationships that you build and about creating change in your own heart and your own life and hoping that you’ve made some sort of impact in the hearts and minds of others.” BRIAN STRASSBURGER

AUGUSTINIAN VOLUNTEERS— COLLABORATION ON THE GROUND

One of the reasons Brian can speak so knowledgeably about the Missions is because Brian was an Augustinian Volunteer for two years: in 2006-07 in the Bronx, NY; and beginning in January 2008, Brian went to serve at the Augustinian Missions in Durban, South Africa. He worked at St. Theresa’s Primary School, St. Theresa’s Boys Home and at the Respite Unit for the Hillcrest AIDS Centre. The experience was one of the most important years of his life:

“The friars and the volunteers work side by side and share the Augustinian charism of community. Fr. Frank Doyle (Pastor of Our Lady of Kloof and the three Zulu Mission churches in South Africa) had an open door policy where the Volunteers shared in the common community. It was never us and them; it was very inclusive. In many ways Volunteers become an extension of the friars.”

If Brian has to use one word to describe the traits of an Augustinian Volunteer it’s perseverance:

“Encountering situations of extreme poverty, encountering situations of death and dying on a very regular basis, take a large emotional but also physical toll on a person. And having to encounter that while being completely removed from your comfort zone and your own support system is very, very challenging. One of the gifts that is given to the Volunteers is living in community with other volunteers and creating this new support system.”

“You don’t get the daily, monthly or even annual feeling of Oh, I can see I’m really making a difference here. Being an Augustinian Volunteer is much more about the relationships that you build and about creating change in your own heart and your own life and hoping that you’ve made some sort of impact in the hearts and minds of others.”

In speaking about the Augustinian Volunteers seen in “God’s Foot Soldiers” Fr. Tony says:

“The Volunteers teach very well in the schools, they work well in the respite units and in the orphanage. But when you see the whole history of Apartheid, you see what the Volunteers are all about. They are there to build the bridges, to break down the stereotypes, and to live the Gospel in their own way. That’s by touching people, especially there in their deepest hurts. And that is Apartheid, the division by race. They show whites what we’re called to be and they show the Zulus what it can be. That’s the big impact.”

SUPPORTERS AND BENEFACTORS— COLLABORATION BENEATH THE WINGS OF THE MISSIONS

For Fr. Tony and Brian, a big part of their role is to raise the funds to support the Missions in various ways. The bulk of the funds they raise come through lay support of the Mission Appeals. Fr. Tony, Brian, Augustinian Friars and Augustinian Volunteers spend weekends during the summer traveling around the country to speak to congregations about the Augustinian Missions.

They write and distribute a quarterly Missions Newsletter and they receive donations for jewelry and ornaments made by Zulus, Mission Christmas gift cards and Missions Mass cards.

The Augustinian Development Council, a lay group of successful, professional business people, with its Chairman, Charles P. Connolly, Jr., give time, talent and treasure by leading The Augustinian Fund, now entering its fifth year. In its four years of existence, the Augustinian Fund has raised $4,017,791, of which $1,727,650 (43%) has been given in support of the Missions in Japan, Peru and South Africa.

As Fr. Tony sees it, “None of this could happen without the donors. We couldn’t feed the children. We couldn’t build a new church. They have made a tremendous difference. They have no idea how much of a difference they have made. Take a small thing like the fruit program. That was the first food the children received outside of rice and beans. And the teachers, after a couple of months, talked about how they could see a difference in the kids in afternoons after they get fruit, because they have some nutrients. They’re not falling asleep in class. They’re more alive and they are learning better. Children cannot learn without food, and they didn’t have it. They have food now because of our donors. They can learn, and their lives can change. Without education, there’s no hope. You can have a school, but if the kids can’t learn in it, what good are the buildings? Food, supplies, desks, blackboards, things like that, it’s all due to the donors.”

Brian is impressed by the benefactors of the Missions for their commitment:

“Fr. Dick Appici was the Mission director for such a long time and so many of our supporters came to be supporters through their personal relationships with Fr. Appici. And with his passing, I’ve been continually buoyed by the fact that a lot of those donors continue to be very generous in their gifts to the missions, for the sake of the legacy of Fr. Appici, and just because their own personal compassion and personal commitment to the Missions has lasted beyond the life of Fr. Appici himself.”

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

In “God’s Foot Soldiers,” Augustinian Volunteer Rebecca Little tells us about the Zulu word “ubuntu,” which means “I am because we are.” It’s a beautiful word. A word we don’t have an equivalent for in English. A word that poignantly expresses the relationship between the Augustinian Missions and their collaborators of lay staff, lay volunteers and lay benefactors.

For Brian, the biggest thing is just continuing the work that’s happening:

“Working in the underdeveloped world is a patient, patient process. Creating change globally is a patient process. It doesn’t happen overnight. It doesn’t happen quickly. It takes a long time and a long commitment. I want to see the missions exhibit that sense of patient commitment, regardless of the timetable.”

To Brian, it’s a very important aspect of volunteer programs that there’s a continuity of volunteers. So volunteers are not singular in their efforts, but are one in a chain of volunteers, stretching back into the past and moving into the future:

“For example, in my work at St. Theresa’s orphanage: it’s challenging because here you are coming to make a difference, wanting to help the lives of these young kids, who haven’t had consistent role models in their lives. You’re building strong relationships, knowing full well that at the end of the year you're getting on a plane and leaving them completely. If anything, you end up reinforcing the issues of abandonment they've dealt with their entire lives."

"The only way to see past that is if you see yourself as not one volunteer, but as one of many volunteers. Where there is this continuum. You introduce yourself as an Augustinian Volunteer. I'm not just Brian when I'm meeting you, I'm an Augustinian Volunteer. And so, just as you knew Jake and Bri and Matt before, you'll know me now and you'll know Meg and Mary Kate and Sinéad and Becca in the future, etc.

It's part of that continuum of volunteers." "The partnership between lay volunteers and Augustinians needs to continue. The church needs it to continue. Regardless of the direction that vocations go in the next generation or so, what we've learned recently is that there's a healthy partnership that can be established there between the laity and those in consecrated life. And I think the Augustinians in their missions have been a great example of that, where you have volunteers and friars sharing elements of community together and sharing ministry together." ✚

A GLIMPSE

It's likely the "learners" seen in this still photo from the "God's Foot Soldiers" documentary have always had fruit as part of their daily meal at St. Leo's School. But the older children and teachers know the Augustinian fruit program has only been happening since 2007. The inspiration for the fruit program came from Karen Thurman, a leader in philanthropic work for the Augustinian Missions, while she was on a service trip to South Africa. Karen noticed there was nothing fresh in the children's diet. She went to a market, filled her car with boxes of fruit and brought them back for the children. The school has doubled in size, but Karen, her husband Randy and donors to the Augustinian Fund's food program have kept the fruit coming.

THE AUGUSTINIAN FAMILY: A SERIES OF CONVERSATIONS BY NATALIE AGRAZ

HARRY R. HALLORAN, JR.

Harry R. Halloran, Jr., is Chairman and CEO of American Refining Group, and ARG Resources, and is the Founder and CEO of Energy Unlimited, Inc., a company involved in the renewable energy field.

Mr. Halloran is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania with a degree in Civil Engineering. After graduating, he entered the Augustinian Seminary for four years and earned an M.A. in Theology.

Mr. Halloran founded Halloran Philanthropies in 2007 with the belief that business is one of the most powerful drivers of social change.

Mr. Halloran very generously agreed to be the main underwriter of The Visionaries episode, "God's Foot Soldiers."

NA: How did you first encounter the Augustinians?

HH: Although I went to St. Joseph's Prep, my younger brothers went to Malvern and I used to drive them there. My father became very close to the Augustinians and became involved with the school; he was President of the Fathers' Club. And through my brothers we really got to know a number of wonderful Augustinian priests, particularly Fr. Coffey, the Headmaster, who became a real presence in our lives, and through him the Provincial, Fr. Greenlee.

NA: When you decided to enter the seminary to become a priest, why the Augustinians and not the Jesuits or a Diocesan seminary?

HH: I decided to enter the seminary because I had this feeling of wanting to "go all the way," to do something "all the way." I come from a strong Catholic family; I had an aunt who was a nun and an uncle who was a Redemptorist. This was 1961, vocations were in their heyday, I was a college graduate with an engineering degree and I guess I was considered a pretty interesting candidate. I first spoke to the pastor of my church, St. Madeleine Sophie, he was a Diocesan priest—and then I decided to look into the different religious orders. So I visited the Jesuits, the Augustinians, the Benedictines and the Franciscans. The Franciscan vocation director said to me, "I don't know what you're looking for, but we're all pretty similar; if I were you, I would just take a stab and go with the one you're most comfortable with." Well for me, that was the Augustinians. The Augustinians appealed to me, it was just that simple. So I went to the seminary for about four-and-a-half years.

I really enjoyed the experience. We were a good group. I met Paul Morrissey, Miles Glasgow, Ray Schanley, Ray Jackson, Shawn Tracy, Bill Dolan, and Jim McCartney. Fr. Ray Jackson was real character and became a very close friend. He later became our family priest; he baptized our children. I made a lot of good friends, and have a lot of wonderful memories, but I decided it wasn't a good fit for the long term for me.

NA: So what came next?

HH: So I left and taught Religious Studies at St. Vincent's College in Latrobe, PA. Then I was a VISTA volunteer (Volunteers in Service to America) for two years and went to a craft village and cooperative in Oreland, ME. Home Workers Organized for More Employment was the name of the organization. I was one the managers. We built a craft village and started an adult education program and a sheep co-op. I ran the hand craft

Visionary n. one who thinks about or plans the future with imagination or wisdom; a visionary leader; one who has the ability to imagine how a country, society, industry etc. will develop in the future; a visionary reformer co-op. It was also my first stab at fundraising. David and Peggy Rockefeller gave us a grant and came to visit the craft cooperative. Then in 1973, my father got sick and I was called back to help in the family's construction business. It was a fairly large regional construction company. We did parts of the NJ Turnpike, the Schuylkill Expressway, Spring Garden St. Bridges, and Great Adventure Amusement Park. Then, through my brother, I got into the oil refining business. In 1975 I took over American Refining Group and became the CEO and really learned the oil business. Eventually I purchased the refinery in Bradford, PA. In 1980 I started to get into the wind business; I was one of the founders of wind energy. I am now into a diversity of energy businesses: oil refining, oil and natural gas production, wind, solar, geothermal, fuel cells, biomass, and all kinds of things. Then, about four years ago I got interested in philanthropy. I hired Anthony Carr, who was also in the novitiate with me back in 1961; he was retiring as the CEO of a hospital in Fresno, CA so I offered him a job as Executive Director of Halloran Philanthropies. We have about four or five staff members in different parts of the United States and the world.

NA: Halloran Philanthropies is involved in microfinance, global ethics, community service, inter-religious dialogue, clean energy to improve the health and livelihood of the rural poor. Is there a unifying principal for these seemingly diverse initiatives?

HH: Our mission statement says we are trying to be a factor in improving the world. We're moving toward "the world we all want." We're not as focused as some philanthropies, but it's somewhat the way I approached energy: I diversified my interests in energy, I have diversified interests in philanthropy, but they are all tied to the mission statement. They now feel like they're connected in some way.

NA: Tell me more about "the world we all want."

HH: It's a world where the basic elements of human well-being are met: enough money, safety, education, health care, food. Getting to the world we all want is continuing the evolutionary process of progress. To do what has to be done to get us all there. Religious people, like the Augustinians, business people, entrepreneurs and charities are developing economies and helping people create the world we all want, helping people have decent lives.

NA: What made you decide to underwrite The Visionaries segment for the Augustinians?

HH: It just occurred to me that this was a project that was going to show people that the Augustinians were more than Villanova, or the parishes and schools, as wonderful as that all is. Few people would have guessed the Augustinians were involved in mission work in South Africa, Peru and downtown Philadelphia or had an Augustinian Volunteer Program. It could have fantastic results in tying all of this together. I thought it was a good investment that would show returns for several years, and a natural follow-up of my support for the Augustinians over the years.

Also, it was a real opportunity to partner with The Visionaries, an organization that is value-based and has had so many other successful projects. I think it turned out better than anyone had expected. ✚

Augustinian Youth Encounter 2010

From August 9-15, the Province of St. John Stone (England/Scotland) hosted the 10th international Augustinian Youth Encounter. The event brought together 250 youth, young adults, friars and sisters from Augustinian schools and parishes around the world. Students from St. Augustine's Prep and Villanova University were part of a group of twenty-four people from the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova, one of the largest groups in attendance. In total, eighteen countries from six different continents were represented. Each day a different country led the Mass and prayer session, featuring songs and prayers in their native language. One of the highlights of the event was a day trip to Clare Priory, established in 1248 as the first Augustinian house in the English-speaking world. Held every 2-3 years, the next Augustinian Youth Encounter will be in Buenos Aires, Argentina in 2013.

Book News

Spiritual and Psychological Aspects of Illness is a new ministry resource comprised of twenty essays written by experts on the theological, psychological and personal dimensions of loss, dying and death. What's the O.S.A. connection? Neil McGettigan, O.S.A., co-edited the book with Beverly Musgrave and both Fr. Neil and Fr. John Shea, O.S.A., have essays in the book. Published by Paulist Press, and released in June of 2010, the book is available online.

George Lawless, O.S.A. pens the forward in a new book, Four Faces of Anger by Gertrude Gillette, O.S.B. Anger is examined through the views of four ancient authors: Seneca, Evagrius Ponticus, Cassian and Augustine. While Augustine wrote much on anger as preventing growth in community, the focus here is on the toll the vice of anger takes on spiritual growth in our relationship with God. Historic 16-Bell Carillon Restored at St. Mary of the Assumption Church, Lawrence, MA

For a decade, since it was hit by a lightning strike, the historic 16-bell carillon at St. Mary of the Assumption Church in Lawrence, MA, had been silent. The 16 bronze bells were built by William Blake of Boston, who apprenticed for Paul Revere. On Sunday, October 18th, at a Mass where over 3000 were packed into the pews, Cardinal Seán O'Malley, O.F.M. Cap., of Boston, blessed the restored bells. Cardinal O'Malley preached at the Mass and praised Fr. Jorge Reyes, O.S.A., and the Augustinians for the work they do ministering to the Hispanic population in Lawrence. The bells, which have a high-tech system, can play over 2000 tunes, including traditional hymns such as "Ave Maria" and "Tantum Ergo" and the theme from the 1945 film, "The Bells of St. Mary's." The system will be programmed to sound "The Angelus" three times a day. Funds for the restoration were jointly raised by parishioners and an outside group. Cardinal O'Malley was scheduled to be at St. Mary's in honor of the 20th anniversary of La Voz Católica, a Spanish-language, Catholic radio station, for which Fr. Reyes serves as spiritual director. The news of the restoration was covered in an article in the Boston Globe and Cardinal O'Malley noted his visit to St. Mary's Church and the blessing of the bells in his weekly blog.

A Loving Tribute

Fr. Tom Dwyer, O.S.A., was honored by his staff, students, friends and the U.S. Consulate as he ended 52 years of service in Japan.

On May 2, 2010, 300 people gathered to honor Fr. Tom Dwyer as he prepared to retire to the U.S. after 52 years in Fukuoka, Nagasaki, Tokyo and Nagoya. The group, many of whom met Fr. Tom during his 26 years as principal of the Augustinian kindergarten program in Fukuoka, prepared a festive and loving event to honor his service. The group performed an original song about him, acted out scenes from his favorite movies, and showed a slide show of his life, set to the theme song of "Rocky." Consul Mark S. Dieker, who was invited to speak at the dinner, presented Fr. Tom with a citation for his service to the children of atomic bomb victims, the homeless, special-needs children and foreign-born workers in Japan.

IN PARADISUM

The following friars were called home to God. You can read full biographies of these Augustinians, and post your own reflections or favorite memory, online at www.augustinian.org

STANLEY C. SMITH, O.S.A.

BORN: 2/9/1935
FIRST PROFESSION: 9/10/1953
ORDAINED: 12/17/1960
DIED: 1/1/2010

Fr. Smith taught for several years at Archbishop Carroll High School in Washington, D.C., but the majority of his priestly ministry was in parishes. His parochial assignments included St. Joseph, Greenwich, NY; Assumption, St. Augustine and St. Mary Parishes in Lawrence, MA as well as St. Augustine Parish, Andover, MA where he had been baptized and attended elementary school. With degrees in philosophy and theology, Fr. Stan in later years devoted his studies to matters concerning spirituality in the second half of life. He was an advocate among his brothers for recognizing and appreciating the wisdom of the elder friars.

RAYMOND E. GEISSER, O.S.A.

BORN: 2/1/1925
FIRST PROFESSION: 9/10/1955
ORDAINED: 6/4/1960
DIED: 4/6/2010

Fr. Geisser was an Army veteran who had survived the 1944 D-Day invasion. After his ordination, Fr. Ray's ministry was devoted to the educational apostolate. His first assignment was to Villanova University, where he taught theology and engineering, and served as Assistant Director of Admissions. The Augustinian Fund

To kickoff the fifth year of the Augustinian Fund, a Gala event was held at the Connelly Center on the campus of Villanova University. The centerpiece of the evening was the private premiere of "God's Foot Soldiers," a piece done by The Visionaries, a Public Television series, in its sixteenth season. Hosted by Sam Waterston of Law & Order, the series documents rarely told stories of nonprofit organizations that work to make a positive difference in their communities and beyond. This special event was hosted by Fr. Mickey Genovese, O.S.A., Prior Provincial and Fr. Don Reilly, O.S.A. The documentary was underwritten by Halloran Philanthropies and by the law firm of Lavin, O'Neil, Ricci, Cedrone & DiSipio.

More than 250 people were in attendance. The co-chairs of this year's fund are Claudia Piccirilli and Anthony Dellomo.
